Province, BCTF still far apart, says mediator

Strike. Vince Ready enters long-running teachers' dispute as new school year approaches

A veteran labour mediator waded into a bitter dispute between the British Columbia government and its teachers Thursday, meeting with both sides in what could be the most significant development in a strike that is threatening to derail the start of the school year.

At the end of the meeting, mediator Vince Ready emerged to say the two sides still appeared very far apart. But he said he asked bargaining committees to reconvene with him on Friday.

Earlier in the day, Ready described the meeting as "exploratory" as he assessed whether the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the B.C. Public School Employers' Association, which bargains on behalf of the government, are close enough to begin formal mediation.

Teachers have been on strike since mid-June, though negotiations were largely stalled over the summer break, making a delayed start to the school year increasingly likely.

Ready, who has helped bring an end to a number of high-profile labour disputes in the province, acknowledged he was walking into a very difficult situation.

"Last time I met them, they were a long ways apart," Ready said as he arrived at a hotel in Richmond.

The gathering followed a proposal from the province's education minister, who asked the teachers' union and the employer a day earlier to enter into mediation, put aside one of the most contentious issues in the dispute, and agree not to stage strikes or lockouts for two weeks.

Peter Cameron, the employers' lead negotiator, said the education minister's proposal wasn't a prerequisite for mediation.

Union president Jim Iker did not comment as he arrived for Thursday's meeting or when he left for the day. Iker has yet to say whether the federation is prepared to put the strike on hold and allow teachers to return to the classroom next week, though he has said such a move would likely require a vote from union members.

The education minister has repeatedly said the government will not use legislation to order teachers back to work.

Mayor claims affordable housing 'surge' in city

'The right track.' Data comes on same day as RBC report pointing out dire affordability levels

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

There's been an "affordable-housing surge" in Vancouver over the past two years, according to data released Thursday by the mayor's office that trumpets record levels of rental and social housing approvals.

Two-thirds of all rental housing and 55 per cent of all social housing approved since 2003 has taken place since 2012, according to the mayor's office.

"Our focus has been ensuring we deliver new housing that meets a range of incomes," said Vision Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson in a statement. "These numbers show we're on the right track."

This range of affordable housing includes 1,382 social housing units, which start at the welfare rate of $375 per month. It also includes 2,942 rental housing units with maximum rents of $1,443 a month for a studio, $1,517 for a one-bedroom and $2,061 for a two-bedroom.

For a studio at that price to qualify for Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation's definition of affordable housing (less than 30 per cent of before-tax income), the individual living in it would have to earn $57,720. In 2012, the median individual income in Vancouver was $24,100, according to Statistics Canada.

The data was released the same day that RBC's quarterly report pegged Vancouver as the Canadian major-city market with the poorest affordability levels.

The data also came amid calls from rival political party OneCity for the city to become a "living wage" employer.

Vancouverites need to earn $20.10 per hour to cover basic expenses if they are in a two-parent family in which both adults work, according to city council candidate RJ Aquino.

All 56 passengers injured in bus rollover

Dozens of people were injured when a tour bus rolled over on the mountainous Coquihalla Highway on Thursday.

RCMP Sgt. Norm Flemming said all 56 passengers aboard suffered some sort of injury when the southbound bus crashed about 30 kilometres south of Merritt around 3 p.m.

Six of the passengers were in critical condition and 15 were seriously hurt, Flemming said, with the rest suffering from bumps, bruises and cuts.

"We don't have any fatalities listed yet and we're just crossing our fingers and hoping for the best on that one," he said.

The cause is under investigation. The bus was the only vehicle involved in the crash.

The bus was travelling to the Vancouver area from the Okanagan, Flemming said.

Kelsie Carwithen of B.C. Emergency Health Services said six helicopters and 19 ambulances were dispatched.

Nick Kam, director of service for Super Vacation, a company based in Richmond, B.C., that identifies itself as the largest "Chinese tour operator in North America," confirmed the bus was on a tour organized by his company.

Kam said the bus was not owned by his company but chartered through another company, which he didn't identify.

Highway 5 was closed for hours from Hope to Merritt on Thursday evening, with air ambulances landing on the roadway.

"It's a big mess," Flemming said.

In July, speed limits were raised to 120 km/h from 110 km/h on the section of the highway where the crash occurred.

Surrey. Girl, 9, abducted from bedroom, sexually assaulted

Police are warning the Surrey Central Community after a nine-year-old girl was abducted from her bedroom and sexually assaulted in a nearby park on Wednesday night.

A stranger lured the girl, who had been sleeping, out of her open bedroom window, took her to a park where the alleged sexual assault occurred, then left her alone in a neighbour's yard and commanded she stay while he fled, according to a statement from Surrey RCMP.

The girl ran home almost immediately to her mother, who called police to the 9900 block of 128 Street around 10:40 p.m. The girl was taken to hospital where she is receiving medical care. The suspect remains at large.

The special victims unit will conduct the investigation with help from the Lower Mainland district forensic identification section.

Police canvassed the neighbourhood Thursday, knocking on doors to search for anyone who saw something out of the ordinary Wednesday night. They will likely remain on the scene Friday. EMILY JACKSON/METRO

Privacy. Police recruitment process targeted in complaint

How much is too much information when it comes to police departments and their new recruits?

That's what the B.C. Freedom of Information and Privacy Association means to find out in a new complaint about police employment and volunteer processes that it filed with the Information and Privacy Commissioner, according to its executive director Vincent Gogolek.

A few months ago, a potential Delta police volunteer approached the association to show them a 25-page questionnaire asking questions about credit cards, loans, use of drugs and pornography, and if the applicant ever applied for unemployment insurance or social assistance.

"It's just ridiculous on the face of it," he said. "It doesn't make any sense."

Gogolek said these types of questions are intrusive and hopes the commissioner will determine if people are handing over an unreasonable amount of personal information.

The complaint provides links to recruit processes with the New Westminster, Delta, Abbotsford and Vancouver police departments, among others.

But the Vancouver Police Department says it's accountable to the public when hiring the best recruits. Its website lists an 11-step process including an intake interview, psychological testing, and an integrity and lifestyle questionnaire.

'Not her time to go'

Continuing her legacy. Vancouver woman raises awareness of ovarian cancer after mom's death

thandi.fletcher@metronews.ca

When Vancouver mom Esterina Valentinuzzi complained of a nagging pain in her abdomen that wouldn't go away, no one in her family suspected it could be ovarian cancer.

"We had no knowledge of the disease," said daughter Stephanie Valentinuzzi. "It was a shock to us because they were symptoms women can have any day."

Valentinuzzi passed away three years ago at the age of 61, a decade after she was diagnosed with stage-four ovarian cancer, the most serious level of the disease.

Ovarian cancer is difficult to diagnose as the symptoms are often vague and can be mistakenly attributed to other causes, said Tracy Kolwich, director of Ovarian Cancer Canada's pacific region.

There are also many misconceptions about ovarian cancer, Kolwich said, such as the belief that pap tests can diagnose the disease or that the HPV vaccine protects against it.

Stephanie said her mom had visited her doctor complaining of the abdominal pain and bloating, but was told it was likely just a digestive issue and to keep an eye on it.

After two weeks of return visits, however, Valentinuzzi was finally referred to a specialist, who diagnosed her with the disease.

While her mother's death was a devastating blow, Stephanie said she is grateful for the 10 years she and twin sister Cristina, who were 18 when she was diagnosed, were able to spend with her.

"She just said that it wasn't her time to go," Stephanie said. "But at 27, she knew that she had told us everything she needed to tell us."

In her final years, Stephanie said her mom became involved with Ovarian Cancer Canada, working to raise awareness of the disease.

She and her sister now work to continue their mom's legacy, taking part in initiatives like Ovarian Cancer Awareness month, which gets underway in September, during which they will both wear teal on Sept. 5 and take part in Vancouver's Walk of Hope on Sept. 7.

As a lifelong teacher, Stephanie said her mom always advocated for educating oneself and taking control of one's own health.

"She always said knowledge is power," she said.

Unlawful Confinement.
Man charged in West End apartment invasion

Police have charged a man with unlawful confinement in a targeted West End apartment invasion that prompted one victim to jump off a seventh-floor balcony to escape.

Officers locked down an apartment building at Denman and Davie after receiving reports alleging a man with a gun forced his way into a unit on Aug. 19 around 3:30 p.m.

The victim who jumped off the balcony was treated in hospital for minor injuries and three others in the apartment were not injured. The suspect evaded capture.

But police executed a search warrant at a Vancouver residence on Wednesday and arrested a man regarding the incident. The investigation, which is ongoing, recovered two handguns and stolen property.

Ira Matthew Winrob, 34, has been charged with break and enter and unlawful confinement. He has no criminal record and is not known to police. He will remain in custody until his next court appearance. EMILY JACKSON/METRO

'Crazy mayhem' at annual Aritzia sale

Shop on. Nearly 1,500 line up for bargains

THANDI FLETCHER
thandi.fletcher@metronews.ca

Christmas came early for Vancouver fashionistas on Thursday.

About 1,500 shoppers lined up outside the Vancouver Convention Centre in the early morning hours Thursday hoping to score a deal at the first day of the annual Aritzia Warehouse Sale, which opened at 7 a.m.

"It was crazy mayhem," said Aritzia spokeswoman Sophia Scaletta. "It's probably going to be one of the largest turnouts ever."

At opening hour, the lineup snaked along the seawall, ending in Jack Poole Plaza.

Some keen shoppers even camped overnight, starting the queue around midnight with their sleeping bags in tow, said Scaletta.

The five-day sale has become an annual tradition for the Vancouver-based retailer, which opened its first store in the city in 1984.

Despite hours in line, many shoppers agreed the discounts, ranging from 50 to 90 per cent, were worth the lack of sleep and hordes of people.

"Spent $200 on $1,000 worth of clothing," tweeted Jenny Bishop. "I'd say it was a successful day." Another shopper tweeted about buying $700 worth of goods for $290.

Although stock is replenished daily, Scaletta recommended shoppers arrive early for the best deals.

"If you have the slightest eye for something, grab it," she said.

Shoppers should also avoid bringing a coat, large purse or backpack, as those will have to be checked at the door, she said.

The Aritzia Warehouse Sale is open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. from Thursday to Saturday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday and Monday.

Ukraine claims Russia sending tanks and troops

Satellite photos. NATO says at least 1,000 Russian troops are inside the country

Ukraine accused Russia on Thursday of entering its territory with tanks, artillery and troops, and Western powers said Moscow had "outright lied" about its role and dangerously escalated the conflict.

Russia dismissed the allegations, describing the fighters there as "Russian volunteers." The Kremlin has repeatedly denied arming and supporting the separatists who have been fighting Ukrainian troops for four months in the gravest crisis between Russia and the West since the end of the Cold War.

NATO said at least 1,000 Russian troops are in Ukraine and later released what it said were satellite photos of Russian self-propelled artillery units moving last week.

Two columns of tanks and other equipment entered southeastern Ukraine at midday, following heavy shelling of the area from Russia that forced overmatched Ukrainian border guards to flee, said Col. Andriy Lysenko, a spokesman for Ukraine's national security council.

"Russian forces have entered Ukraine," President Petro Poroshenko said in Kyiv, cancelling a foreign trip and calling an emergency meeting of his security council.

He urged Ukrainians to remain calm.

"Destabilization of the situation and panic, this is as much of a weapon of the enemy as tanks," Poroshenko told the council.

U.S. President Barack Obama spoke with German Chancellor Angela Merkel, and both leaders agreed Russia must face consequences for its actions.

Obama says U.S. will not take military action

President Barack Obama is ruling out the possibility that the U.S. will take military action to address growing violence in Ukraine.

Obama says the U.S. will stand firm with its allies to address the conflict in Ukraine, where the U.S. says Russia is backing pro-Russian separatists. But Obama says a military confrontation between the U.S. and Russia in the region "is not in the cards."

NATO mission. Canada's fighter jets edging closer to Russian airspace

Canadian fighter jets will be patrolling the edge of Russian airspace next week as part of NATO's response to the unravelling situation in Ukraine.

Four of the six CF-18s sent overseas by the Harper government earlier this year have arrived at Siauliai Air Base in Lithuania, where they will fly armed air policing missions over the Baltic states.

The formal handover of responsibility is expected to take place early next week and the mission is expected to last until the end of the year.

While in Lithuania, the Canadian jets will be working alongside fighter jets from Portugal. Germany and Belgium also have fighters in the region, but they will be carrying out flights from bases in another Baltic state.

The jets, which had been based in Romania on a training exercise, are tasked with defending Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian airspace because those countries are unable to do so on their own.

Goodell talks penalties for domestic violence

Acknowledging he "didn't get it right" with a two-game suspension for Ravens running back Ray Rice, NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell announced tougher penalties for players accused of domestic violence, including six weeks for a first offence and at least a year for a second.

Goodell sent a memo about the unacceptability of domestic violence to all 32 team owners Thursday, telling them to post it in locker rooms.

It reads in part: "Domestic violence and sexual assault are wrong. They are illegal. They are never acceptable and have no place in the NFL under any circumstances."

‘Unruly’ women force flight back to Toronto

Mistakes on a plane. Passengers cheer as women removed from Cuba-bound aircraft after allegedy smoking and making threats

A booze-fuelled fight between two women who were allegedly drinking and smoking in an airplane bathroom prompted Sunwing to turn a Cuba-bound flight back to Toronto, the airline said — along with a brief military jet escort.

The women also made a threat against the aircraft, but “it was considered non-credible given their condition,” Sunwing’s Janine Chapman said in a statement.

Nonetheless, two Toronto-area women are now facing charges of smoking on board an aircraft, endangering the safety of an aircraft, mischief endangering life, mischief over $5,000 and uttering threats.

Lilia Ratmanski, 25, of Whitby and Milana Muzikante, 26, of Vaughan were granted bail Thursday.

The flight left Toronto at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday en route to Varadero via Manzanillo, but was disrupted by “two unruly female passengers,” Sunwing said. The women consumed a “significant quantity of their duty-free alcohol purchase in the lavatory and lit a cigarette, triggering the smoke detector alarm,” Chapman said. “The passengers proceeded to get into a physical altercation with each other and made a threat against the aircraft.”

The pilot decided to turn the plane around over South Carolina and “that’s when NORAD got involved,” said Major Julie Roberge, a spokeswoman for NORAD based in Colorado Springs, Colo.

NORAD scrambled two CF-18 fighter jets based out of Bagotville, Que., to escort Flight 656 back to Toronto. The jets met the aircraft at the Canadian border and did not venture into American airspace, Roberge said. The CF-18 escort lasted just four minutes, she said.

The aircraft landed at Pearson International Airport at about 8:30 p.m. and Peel Regional Police Const. Thomas Ruttan said the entire plane “erupted in cheers” when the two women were removed from the aircraft.

The flight took off for a second time from Toronto around 11 p.m. Wednesday with a new flight crew, Chapman said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charlottetown. 100 young Canadians meet to shape vision for nation’s future

In 1864, three years before Confederation, Canada’s soon-to-be founding fathers gathered at the Charlottetown Conference on Prince Edward Island. The ideas they discussed there laid the groundwork for what Canada is now.

This Sunday, 150 years later, the New Canada Conference will ask, “What’s next?”

Created by PEI 2014 and based in Charlottetown, the four-day event brings together delegates aged 19 to 24 from across Canada to create a vision of what Canada could become.

“We wanted to host an event that would really create dialogue and offer an opportunity to examine Canada’s future, and really also define the public agenda for the next 50 years,” said Penny Walsh McGuire, executive director with PEI 2014.

“When we reflected on the 1864 Charlottetown Conference, there were a lot of voices not represented at the table among the 23 leaders,” she said. Those missing voices included First Nations, women, the Acadian community and youth.

More than 800 potential delegates from every province and territory applied to attend the conference. One hundred were chosen. “We know we have an amazing delegation coming here,” said Walsh McGuire. “When we look at Canada’s future … among these delegates will be the leaders.”

Each delegate will specialize in one of eight concentrations, including learning and social development; justice and equity; and environment and economy. An expert facilitator will lead discussions and brainstorming around each topic.

On Day 3, delegates will present their ideas and add them to the conference Ideabook, a document that will summarize the key findings and recommendations. Walsh McGuire called the Ideabook “a gift for Canada’s future.”

The man behind Tim Hortons

'Ghost in the corporate machine.' Metro looks at the relationship between the tragic Stanley Cup champion and Canada's iconic brand

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

The hockey player's name is perhaps said more often than any other in Canada — no, it's not Wayne Gretzky.

In all of the talk of what Burger King Worldwide Inc.'s acquisition of Tim Hortons means for Canada's iconic brand, there's little mention of Tim Horton, the man — a Stanley Cup-winning defenceman for the 1950s and '60s Maple Leafs, who died driving drunk near St. Catharines, Ont., in 1974.

"Horton is a ghost in the corporate machine," said Douglas Hunter, author of a book on Miles Gilbert (Tim) Horton and one on Tim Hortons. "He has pretty much disappeared from the store that bears his name."

Fact or Farce?

Tim Horton-less Tim Hortons became synonymous with Canadian identity in part of because of the CBC show Royal Canadian Air Farce, said author Douglas Hunter.

- The bit. "It was this group of idiot-savant Canadians who'd gather around the table and in their own kind of dopey way comment on the issues of the day, cementing this idea that doughnut shops are where Canadians gather together and thrash out what it means to be Canadian."
- Sipping votes. Politicians picked up on the association with regular Canadians, which has turned Tim Hortons into a favoured spot for photo ops.

Prior to his death, the coffee chain had begun to "disengage" Horton from the restaurant, said Hunter, as Horton wasn't comfortable as a "persona" and the company wanted to focus on its food. The phasing out of Horton continued after the circumstances surrounding Horton's death mired the chain's founder in controversy.

On Feb. 21, 1974, Horton, who then played for the Buffalo Sabres, was heading to Buffalo for treatment after taking a puck to the jaw and stopped to meet his partner, Ron Joyce, in the doughnut shop chain, said Hunter. At 4 a.m. Horton went off the road at high speed. Alcohol and pills were found at the scene, but at the time whether or not he was driving drunk was publicly disputed and unconfirmed. (In 2005, the Ottawa Citizen obtained a copy of Horton's autopsy confirming Horton's blood alcohol was twice the legal limit, and traces of Dexamyl, a prescription drug, had been found in his system.)

"At the time he died there were about 50 restaurants open or in development (in Ontario), and they had just signed the first deal in Atlantic Canada," said Hunter. Tim Hortons continued to grow without Horton.

Then, in the late '80s, Lori Horton, Tim's widow, sued Joyce, seeking to reverse her decision to sell her inherited share of Tim Hortons to him for $1 million and a Cadillac Eldorado, saying she wasn't of sound mind due to substance use.

"As part of her arguments a lot of dirty laundry — as Tim's friends put it — came out. She said, 'I'm not that bad person in this relationship; he had a drinking problem, he was angry, he was violent, and he threatened me,'" said Hunter. "There was a lot of airing of stuff that ... was, on a very basic level for Tim Hortons the brand, a problem."

By the time Lori Horton lost her case in '93, there were about 700 restaurants.

According to Hunter, the reason Tim Hortons continues to expand, with little acknowledgement of its founder is, in part, because Horton became "toxic" to the brand.

But Horton wasn't entirely erased. In fact, when his portrait was used as part of a "Tim Horton the Legend" promotion for the Tim Hortons children's camps, Lori Horton sued the company, arguing she had copyright of the photo.

"It was a spiteful suit after she lost the initial suit over the sale," said Hunter. He said the company decided to take the posters down.

Although Horton is not often mentioned in Canada, Hunter said some of Tim Hortons' marketing in the U.S. has included Tim Horton as a hockey player on American teams — neglecting his nearly two decades and four Stanley Cup wins with the Maple Leafs — to emphasize the company's American connections.

WHEN TOMATOES & TIMBITS WERE KING

THE METRO LIST

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Welcome to the final Metro List of the silly season (after Labour Day, everyone's back at work and the real news starts up again). In honour of its passing, we begin with:

1 La Tomatina. Every year since 1945, the good citizens of Buñol in Valencia, Spain, have set aside the last Wednesday in August to throw tomatoes at each other. More than 150,000 tomatoes — approximately 40 tonnes — are sacrificed during the hour-long purée melée. Tomatoes are pre-crushed, so no one is actually hurt. And they grow tomatoes specifically for the event. Silly, yes. Sloppy, yes. Shoddy, no.

2 Would you like fries with those Timbits? Our Canadian identity was seriously shaken this week as Burger King, home of the Whopper, bought Tim Hortons, home of the double-double, for more than $12 billion. No one's quite sure what it means for our national café, but at least they'll never run out of ketchup: 3G, the company that owns Burger King, also recently partnered with Warren Buffett to purchase Heinz and all its 57 varieties.

3 Guess who's making a profit? Canada Post, that's who! In the most unlikely resurrection since Lazarus, Canada Post turned a second-quarter loss of $104 million in 2013 to a profit of $53 million in 2014. Of course, the 35 per cent increase in the price of a stamp, imposed on April Fool's Day, had something to do with it. And more than a million people are scheduled to lose home delivery over the next year. (Mail Nazi: No home delivery for you!) But the last time Canada Post made a profit was 2010, so our postal privations are paying off.

4 Last lesson in Arizona. A shooting instructor in Dolan Springs, Ariz., gave an Uzi machine gun to a nine-year-old girl, told her to fire off a round, which she did, and then instructed her to go "full auto." What could possibly go wrong? Everything, it turned out. The little girl was unable to control the weapon's recoil and the instructor was cut down dead in a hail of bullets. Apart from trauma that will last a lifetime, the girl was unharmed. When will they ever learn?

5 In this guy's case, maybe never. Stop me if you've heard this before: Justin Bieber was driving his red Ferrari on the streets of Los Angeles.... This time, angered because he was being followed by the paparazzi, he slammed on his brakes and the hapless photographer smashed into him. Apparently suffering a soft tissue injury, Bieber tweeted: "We should have learned from the death of Princess Diana…" Well, Justin, you should learn something. Anything.

6 And in other news. The United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change final draft report says global warming is here, it's already dangerous and it could be irreversible. Guess the silly season really is over.

Selection process

According to the Canada Post website, all citizens are encouraged to offer their input into stamp-subject selection, although the choice is shaped by the Stamp Advisory Committee and is ultimately approved by a board of directors.

- They ask that you propose a subject at least two years before the desired issue date.
- Designers are chosen for "demonstrated skill in graphic arts and miniaturization."

Say sayonara to summer!

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Dawn of the Planet of the Apes is one of summer's top sci-fi flicks. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

If you're like the Reel Guys you don't see the long weekend as the last chance to head up to the cottage for a final blast of summer, but more of a three-day sprint to catch up on all the movies you missed over the past three months while you were busy jumping off docks, BBQing or basking in the wondrousness of warm weather. With this list the Reel Guys say sayonara to the silly season and serve up one last refreshing sip of the summer's best air-conditioner movies we took in while the rest of you were slathering on SPF 110.

Long weekend catch-up. The Reel Guys offer their suggestions for the flicks you probably missed when you were at the cottage

Richard: Mark, the summer's biggest hit, Guardians of the Galaxy, is a lot of fun and deserves all the attention it's getting, but for me the two best sci-fi films of the season were Dawn of the Planet of the Apes and Snowpiercer. Apes is a smart movie about race, gun usage and xenophobia that doesn't shy away from big ideas, while Snowpiercer is an unapologetically weird environmental thriller about a revolution on a train. For me it's the nerviest actioner to come along in a season crowded with movies that go crash, boom, bang. What grabbed you this summer?

Mark: Richard, I usually cringe at the beginning of the summer expecting nothing but comic book adaptations and sequels. But this summer those kinds of films turned out to be among the best. The three you mentioned were excellent, but I'd also like to add X-Men: Days of Future Past and Captain America: The Winter Soldier, both of which were smart, exciting, and had time travel motifs. Heck, even the latest instalment of Transformers was a major step forward: I didn't run screaming for the exit. But here are two smaller films that I thoroughly enjoyed: Begin Again, about a burned-out music producer trying to reinvent himself in hipster New York, and Chef, the story of a burned-out gourmet cook who is fired and is forced to start over with his own broken-down food truck. Hey, notice a theme here?

RC: Then there was the story of the burned-out comic. Obvious Child came to theatres with a reputation. In its film festival run, it got labelled "the abortion romcom." While that shorthand description is technically accurate, it's also reductive, ignoring the film's well-crafted and hilarious coming-of-age story about accepting responsibility to concentrate on the more sensational aspect of the story. I know you weren't a fan, but I liked it and thought Jenny Slate was terrific in the lead role.

MB: Didn't work for me, but I did like the James Brown biopic Get On Up. The movie lurches around trying to find its groove but Chadwick Bozeman deserves an Oscar nomination for his total immersion in the role. 22 Jump Street was a pleasant surprise. I didn't care for 21, but this one had a sharper, funnier script and more evolved performances from Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum. And I mostly liked Zach Braff's unofficial sequel to Garden State, Wish I Was Here. The kickstarter funded indie had too much going on to succeed but there were some great sequences that a lot of critics seemed to miss.

RC: I started off talking about Guardians, which, deservedly so, has become the biggest hit of the summer. But another movie gave it a run for its money in the entertainment department, but not in the money department. Edge of Tomorrow may sound like the title of a soap opera, but it's actually the name of a Tom Cruise alien invasion flick. In it, Cruise battles nasty space bugs called Mimics but the story is more Groundhog Day than it is War of the Worlds. The first two reels are packed with energy and invention. It's only when the conventions that made the story enticing are put aside in the last reel that the movie becomes a standard Cruise action flick. But it's still a good Cruise action flick and deserved a bigger audience.

MB: I know I'm going to like Boyhood. Haven't seen it yet because I've been too busy raising an actual boy.

Stars. John Hawkes, Jennifer Aniston, Tim Robbins

Based on Elmore Leonard's novel The Switch, Life of Crime is a dark caper comedy. The wife (Jennifer Aniston) of a corrupt real estate developer (Tim Robbins) is kidnapped by two common criminals (Yasiin Bey and John Hawkes), who intend to extort him with inside information about his crooked business and offshore accounts. But the husband decides he'd actually rather not pay the ransom to get back his wife.

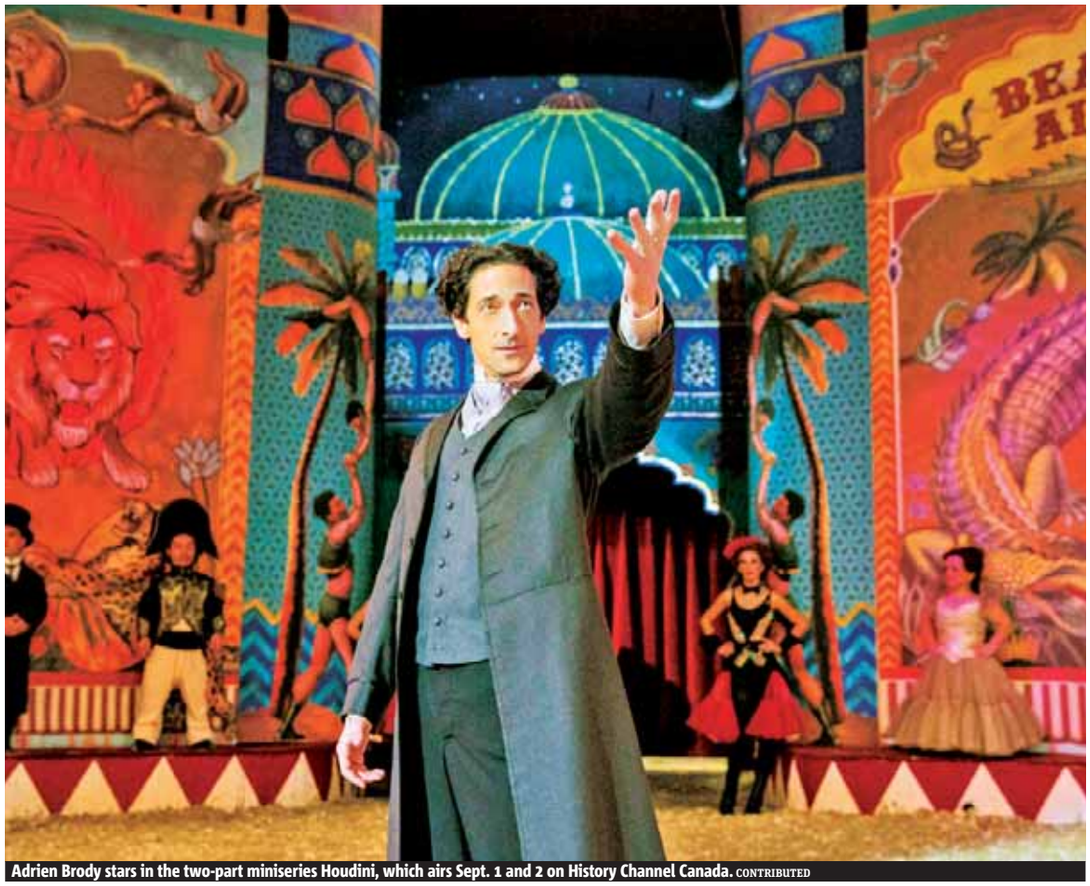
Magic meets the American dream

Houdini. Adrien Brody plays the escape artist in a miniseries that celebrates his magic and his life as a poor Hungarian immigrant

LISA WEIDENFELD
Metro in Boston



Adrien Brody stars in the two-part miniseries Houdini, which airs Sept. 1 and 2 on History Channel Canada. CONTRIBUTED

Harry Houdini may be one of the more quintessentially American heroes.

He was a Hungarian immigrant who invented a new kind of a career for himself in America on his way to fame and fortune — the term "escape artist" didn't exist until he created it.

It's this triumph over odds that drew Oscar-winner Adrien Brody to take on the role of Houdini in the History Channel miniseries biopic Houdini.

Of course, it helped that Brody had a childhood fascination with the man.

"I had aspirations to be a magician as a boy, and was in awe of magic and Houdini," admits Brody.

As an adult, his appreciation of the man is a little more nuanced.

Brody points out that Houdini represents a lot to people in terms of "escaping the confines of poverty and the social constraints of being an immigrant and overcoming anti-Semitism and becoming this heroic, all-American celebrity."

But as a kid, and for a lot of kids during Houdini's heyday, the artist was simply a very brave man, proving "you could defy the laws of nature," as Brody puts it.

That said, Houdini's drive and ambition, which are on full display in the miniseries, may seem obsessive to an adult viewer.

Asked whether there is any parallel between his own drive as an actor and Houdini's endless quest to create bigger and better illusions, Brody says, "I share the drive to a certain extent, but not to impress others."

Brody says he thinks Houdini was constantly searching for validation in his work, but in his own life, he's been very fortunate to get that validation at a young age. (Winning an Oscar at 29 will do that for you.)

Brody says he admires Houdini's tenacity in pursuit of his goals, but says it might not be the most admirable quality.

"Being able to triumph over adversity and fickle years, and to be ingenious in discovering new ways of overcoming those obstacles, that's really admirable."

While preparing for the role, Brody did his best to learn as much as he could about Houdini.

He consulted with magicians David Copperfield and David Blaine to get their input, and even studied Copperfield's collection of writings and memorabilia about Houdini.

He was already partway on the path to being Houdini. "I had a lock-pick set as a kid. I know how to breach a lot of devices and articulate locks."

But one of Houdini's skills eluded him.

The man could apparently manipulate locks with his toes, something Brody attempted but was unable to do successfully.

One way he did manage to mimic the man was in the distinctive, nearly horizontal, hairdo that Houdini sports in almost all his pictures.

"Most of it was my real hair," says Brody. "(However) there was a lot of curling going on."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Brad and Angie wed at last, with entire clan playing a role

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Well, everybody, it finally happened.

Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie went and got themselves hitched — according to noted scandal sheet the Associated Press — and they did it at their chateau in the South of France.

Kudos to whichever tabloid reported at some point over the past nine years that they'd be getting married in France.

Of course, there have been reports that they'd be getting married pretty much everywhere on Earth (and possibly in space) so someone had to be right at some point.

According to the Associated Press, Pitt and Jolie put a lot of work into making sure all of the Jolie-Pitt clan could take part.

Elder sons Maddox and Pax walked Jolie down the aisle, Zahara and Vivienne served as flower girls, and Shiloh and Knox were ring-bearers.

Local orphans looking to get in on the action showed up and tried to usher, hoping to land a more permanent position in the family, but were sadly turned away.

Clooney wedding mired in a pre-nup standoff and fears of Jolie-Aniston clash

In less joyful matrimony news, Pitt pal George Clooney is reportedly having a heck of a tough time planning his own wedding with fiancée Amal Alamuddin.

Among the chief sticking points, according to the National Enquirer? Worries over the guest list, a standoff on the prenup and their wedding planner just up and quitting.

About that guest list: Apparently the unholy trinity of Brad Pitt, Angelina Jolie and Jennifer Aniston is causing headaches once again.

Pitt was planning to attend solo, and Aniston has reportedly said she's coming, but now so is Jolie. "At first she was on the fence about going," a source says of Jolie. "But she quickly changed her mind after George told her that President Obama RSVPd yes.

"George is extremely concerned that by inviting both these women, they'll undoubtedly try to upstage each other and, in doing so, take the spotlight off the bride."

Hanks, Wilson mortified by son

Tom Hanks

Well, this is embarrassing. Tom Hanks and wife Rita Wilson are reportedly mortified over the online antics of their 24-year-old son, Chester, and his rapper persona Chet Haze, according to Radar Online. "Chet's out of control on the Internet, and it's a huge embarrassment to Tom and Rita," a source says. "He talks tough street talk and raps about skipping classes to smoke pot. But behind his back people are laughing because they know he was raised in Brentwood with mega-wealthy parents." Chet, who reportedly doesn't have a steady job and still lives at home, recently posted an inflammatory video in which he berates women for getting "naked on Instagram" and "f—ing around," before blurting out, "I'm already drunk."

Grilled Vegetable and Garlic Salad. Skip the store-bought dressing and make your own in no time

When it comes to grilling, meat is a no-brainer.

But I'm challenging you to think outside the box and throw a few vegetables on the barbecue, too.

Start small with a simple salad and then, start experimenting with others.

Dressing

1. On a work surface, chop the garlic with the pepper flakes. In a bowl, combine all the ingredients with a whisk. Season with salt and pepper.

Salad

1. Preheat the grill, setting the burners to high. Oil the grate.

2. Place the vegetables, except for the tomatoes, on a large baking sheet and brush with the oil. Season with salt and pepper. Grill the mushrooms in a grill wok or threaded on wooden skewers. Grill the vegetables until tender. Cut the cooked zucchini into thick slices. Place the grilled vegetables and tomatoes in a large serving platter and drizzle with the dressing.

Big-boned Napa love

LIQUID ASSETS

California winemakers were shaken early this week when a magnitude-6.0 earthquake rocked the state's premier vineyards in the Napa Valley.

While there was thankfully no loss of life, tweeted images of destroyed bottles and barrels had wine lovers reaching for Kleenex while vineyard employees scrambled for cheesecloth.

Though no time is a good time for a natural disaster, this hit to the Cali wine industry arrives as the popularity of Golden State juice is on the upswing. The last thing winemakers needed was an event that might put a cork in that momentum.

Long considered the Bordeaux of the New World, Napa's famous for its big-boned wines made with cabernet sauvignon and chardonnay. Louis M. Martini is one of the region's oldest producers. Owned by E. & J. Gallo, its wines are a Napa benchmark.

The 2010 Louis M. Martini Napa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon ($29.99 - $39.99) is a meaty mix of cherry, blackberry, cedar and chocolate. Cellar-worthy, it's a perfect mate for your favourite cut of steak. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Checking off one dream at a time

PGA Tour cardholder. Adam Hadwin just made the cut to golf's elite; now, he's set himself new goals

After spending years to complete his primary mission in life, Adam Hadwin is embarking on a new one.

Having secured his PGA Tour card for the first time in his career, the 26-year-old Abbotsford, B.C., golfer aims to keep it for as long as possible.

"(Earning the card) has been a goal of mine for a long time, ever since I really picked up the game seriously and started playing junior and other events," he said. "My whole goal going to school (at the University of Louisville) was not necessarily to further my education or to get a good job. It was to play competitive golf against the best players in college and go to a good golf program and then turn pro."

Hadwin's new quest began Thursday at the Hotel Fitness Championship in Fort Wayne, Ind., the first of four Web.com Tour playoff tournaments. He hopes a strong Web.com playoff showing will kick-start his effort to play in as many PGA events as possible under a complicated reshuffle system that determines entry eligibility based on money winnings.

He secured his PGA Tour card Sunday by finishing in a tie for second place at the Portland Open with a 13-under-par 271 total.

Scott Simmons, Golf Canada's CEO, believes that Hadwin and 27-year-old Merritt, B.C., native Roger Sloan, who also earned full-fledged PGA Tour membership for the first time Sunday in Portland by placing 24th on the Web.com Tour money list, can have a "huge" impact on young Canadian golfers. Raonic aces 26, on to third round Canadian tennis star Milos Raonic advanced to the third round at the U.S. Open with a 7-6 (4), 5-7, 6-4, 7-6 (3) win over Germany's Peter Gojowczyk on Thursday.

The fifth seed from Thornhill, Ont., had 28 aces en route to victory over Gojowczyk, who's ranked No. 124 in the world.

Earlier, Wimbledon doubles champions Vasek Pospisil of Vancouver and Jack Sock of the United States both overcame injury to reach the second round with a 6-4, 6-4 defeat of Jarkko Nieminen and Henri Kontinen. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hutchinson, De Rosario to face Jamaica

Veterans Atiba Hutchinson, Dwayne De Rosario and Julian de Guzman lead the 23-man Canadian squad for the Sept. 9 soccer friendly against Jamaica in Toronto.

Coach Benito Floro has chosen nine MLS players: De Rosario and four others from Toronto FC and four from the Montreal Impact.

The game marks the first at home for Floro since he was hired in July 2013.

Jamaica is ranked No. 85 in the world compared to No. 122 for Canada, the lowest it's been on the FIFA ladder. THE CANADIAN PRESS iTunes Festival is a highlight of the musical year -- and Metro wants to take you there. If going to jolly old London to party the way music superstars like Beck, Pharrell, Elbow and Lenny Kravitz do - sounds like a dream, Metro wants to make that dream come true.

Thirty days of wicked fun kickoff on Sept. 1, with more than 60 artists playing live at the renowned Roundhouse in London. The Roundhouse opened in 1846 with very different beginnings as a steam engine repair centre. Over the years, it took different paths; eventually becoming what is now a legendary performance hall hosting the likes of Pink Floyd, Led Zeppelin and Jimi Hendrix.

Since the iTunes Festival launched in 2007, it has carried on the tradition of stellar performances, bringing in mega stars like Adele, Katy Perry, Elton John, Coldplay and the Foo Fighters. Aside from the artists already mentioned, this year's lineup runs the gamut from BECK to David Gray, Maroon 5 to Pharrell Willams - something for all musical passions.

Experience it live with the world

Watch performances in real-time with the rest of the world by streaming them in HD every day in September at 4 p.m. ET/1 p.m. PT. You can watch on your computer, through iTunes on your iPhone, iPad or iPod touch or watch on the big screen through Apple TV. For a limited time after the gig, performances will be available on iTunes on-demand.
Check it all out at iTunes.com/Festival

Experience the festival with people around the world by following #iTunesFestival on Twitter.

The only way to get access to the event is to win tickets. And Metro has them!

The Lineup

Performances air at 4 p.m. ET/1 p.m. PT on iTunes at iTunes.com/Festival. Miss the show? No worries, watch it on demand for a limited time after.

Once known primarily through his '90s anti-anthem, Loser, Beck Hansen has evolved from scruffy sonic collagist to funk-and-soul revivalist to one of popular music's most esteemed and vital singer/songwriters. After a six-year break between solo releases, this year marked the arrival of one of his finest moments, Morning Phase. The glittering, expertly crafted folk opus is—as Beck has been from the very beginning—singularly hypnotic.

A visionary R&B/pop/soul renaissance man and studio innovator, Pharrell Williams lent his magic touch and sugared falsetto to two of last year's defining singles—Robin Thicke's Blurred Lines and Daft Punk's retro-futurist delight Get Lucky. But in 2014, Williams' titanic G I R L further established him as a disarming solo artist, offering the insanely catchy, Oscar®-nominated neo-soul centerpiece, Happy.

Led by Debbie Harry's insouciant wail, Blondie bridged the gap between the artfully trashy punk and new wave of mid-'70s New York and mainstream disco. They stormed charts on both sides of the Atlantic with an eclectic array of songs, including the shoutalong chorus of Call Me, the seductive coo (and visionary rap) of Rapture, and the reggae lilt of The Tide Is High.

As the voice of the Pretenders, Chrissie Hynde has been a colossal presence in rock 'n' roll since the early '80s. Hynde's intelligent songcraft brought the nervy angles of new wave and raw aggression of punk into the pop mainstream with elegant melodies that, decades later, are still hallmarks of her work.

Guitar hero, wild child, pop idol - Lenny Kravitz became one of the most distinctive personalities in music through his radiant fusion of psychedelic rock, funk, and soul. After releasing 1989's brilliant Let Love Rule, singles like Are you Gonna Go My Way and Fly Away made the singer/songwriter/multi-instrumentalist one of the most popular and critically accalimed musicians of the late '90s. Kravitz's tenth studio album, Strut, continues his reign as a visceral force in rock 'n' roll.

Through a series of vivid transformations—coquettish starlet, electro-dance diva, pop provocateur—Kylie has become one of pop music's most enduring figures. She scored her breakthrough with a sparkling cover of Little Eva's The Loco-Motion in the late '80s. Since then, the Australian-born singer has issued a series of platinum releases, become a stalwart presence on the charts, and picked up ARIAs, BRITs, and GRAMMY®s.
